

Who is eligible?

Your sporting level must be sufficiently high to be eligible for extra support or facilities as a top athlete.

You can obtain an A-, B- or C- top sports statute depending on your sports level.

The conditions are:

- you are an athlete, recognized by the Olympic Committee of your country or/and
- you are selected regularly for the national team in your discipline or/and
- you are a regular participant in international competitions in your discipline or/and
- you are a member of a team in the highest division or/and
- your own sports federation recognizes you as a promising athlete or as one of the top three in your sport or/and
- you are eligible or selected for participation at the Universiade or World University Championships

For students who compete in the highest division, the number of training hours and being selected for the starting line-up is taken into account when the student athlete's statute is being considered.
